

Centres for Excellence in Teacher Training (CETTs)

Dissemination Events - Archived Information

Organisations hoping to be Centres for Excellence in Teacher Training in England will be provided with information on the selection process at the three dissemination events to be held on the 26, 27 and 28 September 2006.

Higher education institutions, colleges and learning providers from work-based and community settings are being encouraged to bid in appropriate groupings. This is not a single organisation initiative; it's about developing a partnership to create a step change in the quality of initial teacher training and continuing professional development.

The principles upon which CETTs should operate have been established after extensive consultation across the learning and skills sector over the last 15 months. Following the dissemination events applications will need to be submitted in November. Once a shortlist has been established, a second stage of bidding will take place early next year, with the successful applicants announced in April 2007.
